How it works

The website
Visitors browse, filter and ask questions.

A secure gateway
Only reads the games. No passwords sit in the page.

The collection
45 game records, kept in my own cloud account.

Browse the collection

Every game is a card with its photo, year and maker. Eight cards a page.

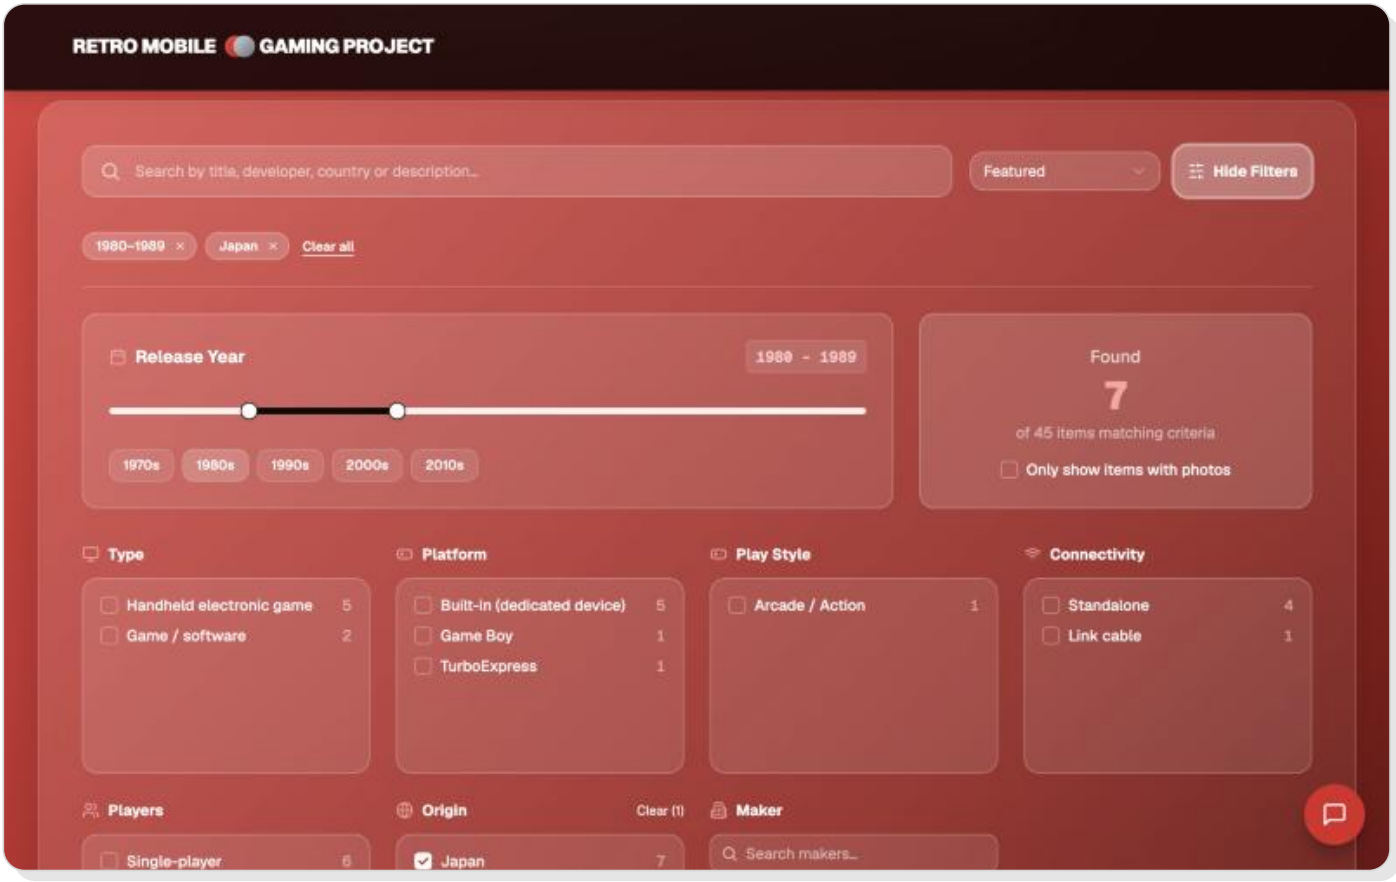

1 Real photos
Straight from RMGP's own archive.

2 The year at a glance
Shown on every card.

3 One click for more
Opens the full record of the game.

Find any game in seconds

Example: games from Japan in the 1980s.

1. Pick a decade
   One click shows only the 1980s.

2. Tick what you want
   Here, games made in Japan.

3. See your choices
   Each one becomes a tag you can remove, or clear them all at once.

4. Live count
   7 of the 45 games match.

Every game in detail

The full record opens on the same page, without leaving the site.

1. Photo and story
   With a short description of the game.

2. The key facts
   Maker, country, year, type and number of players.

3. Credited to RMGP
   Every record links back to the source.

Clear and friendly

When nothing matches

A plain message and one button to start again.

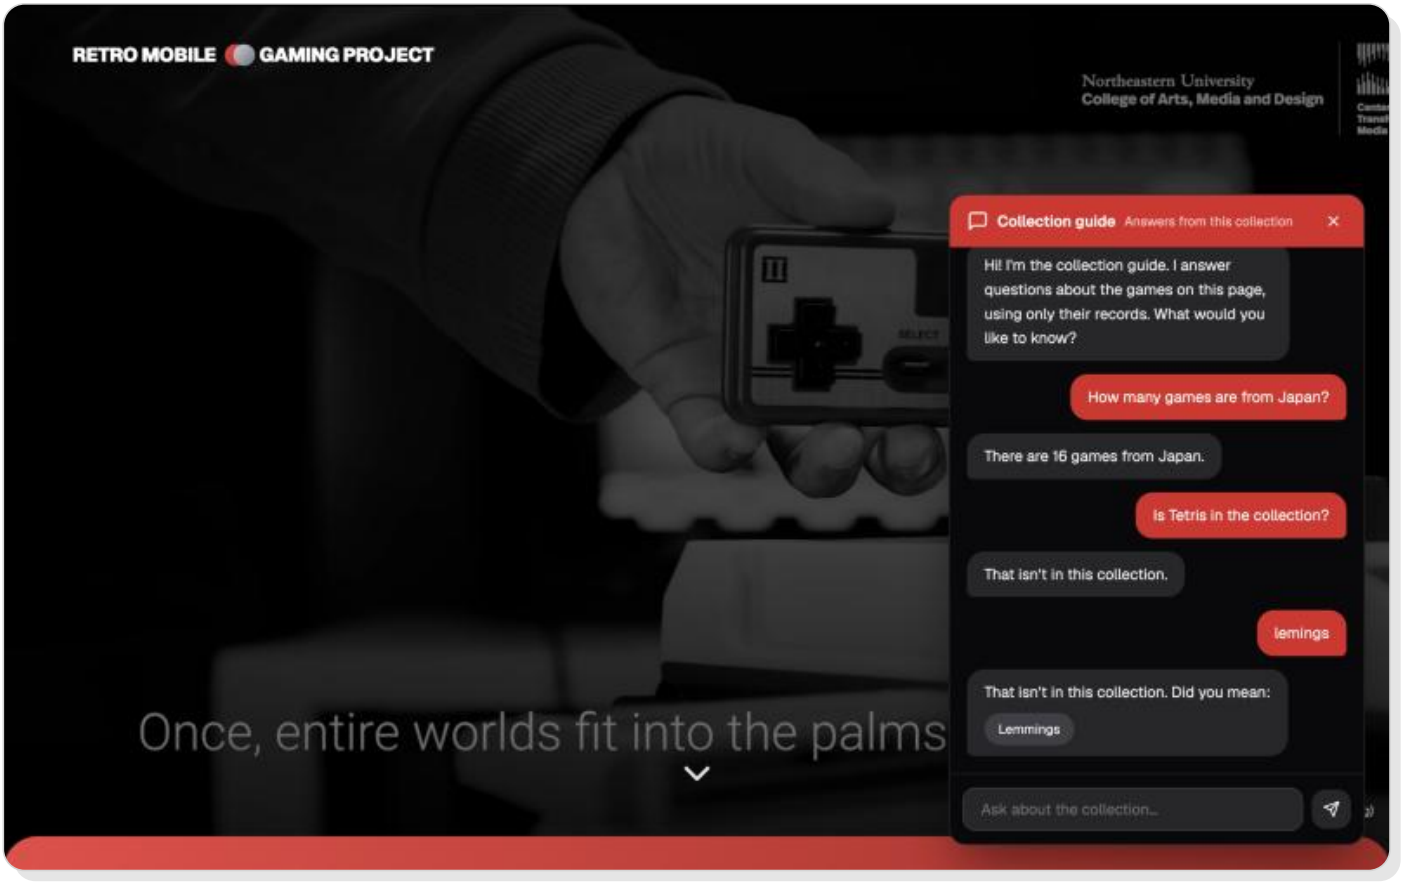

About RMGP

What the project is, and why saving early mobile games matters.

Ask the collection guide

A chat window answers questions using only the games in the collection.

How many games are from Japan?

There are 16 games from Japan.

Is Tetris in the collection?

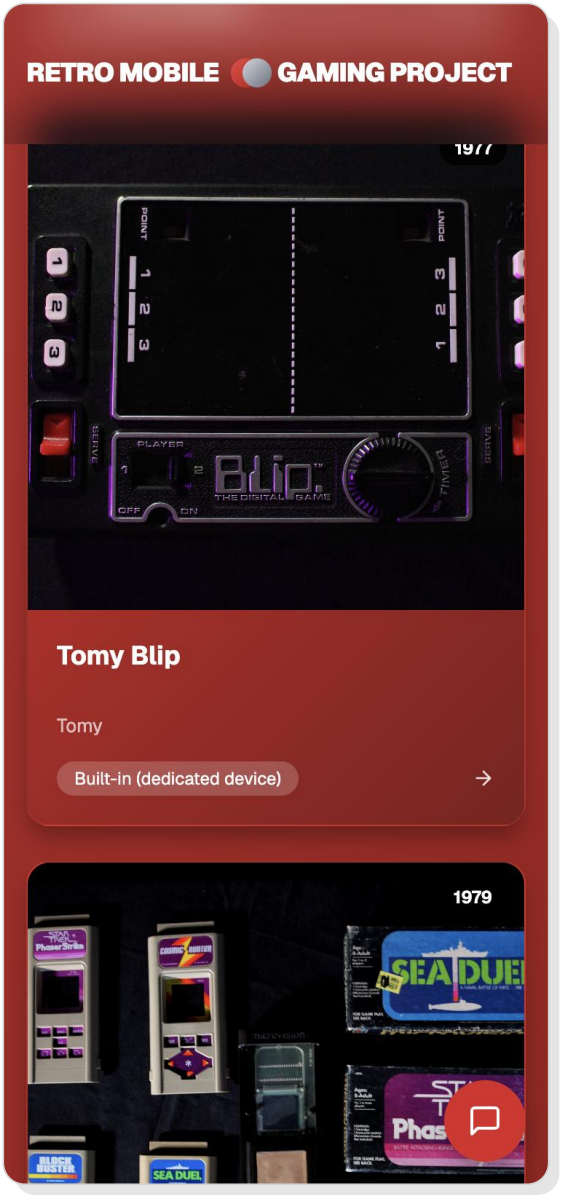

That isn't in this collection.

lemings

Did you mean: Lemmings

It never makes up a game.

Works on phones too

The same page fits a phone screen, and every part works with the keyboard alone.

What comes next

1. A photo gallery section
   A visual strip of the collection's best images.

2. Put the page online
   So the team can open it with a simple link.

3. A smarter guide
   One that follows up on the last question.
