How it works

The website
Visitors browse, filter and ask questions.

A secure gateway
Only reads the games. No passwords sit in the page.

The collection
75 game records, kept in my own cloud account.

Browse the collection

Every game is a card with its photo, year and maker. Eight cards a page.

‹ Back to features

1. Same start as rmgd.org
   It opens with the live archive's first games, in the same order.

2. Real photos
   Straight from RMGP's own archive.

3. The year at a glance
   Shown on every card.

4. One click for more
   Opens the full record of the game.

Find any game in seconds

Example: games from Japan in the 1980s.

‹ Back to features

1. Pick a decade
   One click shows only the 1980s.

2. Tick what you want
   Here, games made in Japan.

3. See your choices
   Each one becomes a tag you can remove, or clear them all at once.

4. Live count
   19 of the 75 games match.

Every game in detail

The full record opens on the same page, without leaving the site.

‹ Back to features

1. Photo and story
   With a short description of the game.

2. The key facts
   Maker, country, year, type and number of players.

3. Credited to RMGP
   Every record links back to the source.

When nothing matches

A plain message and one button to start again.

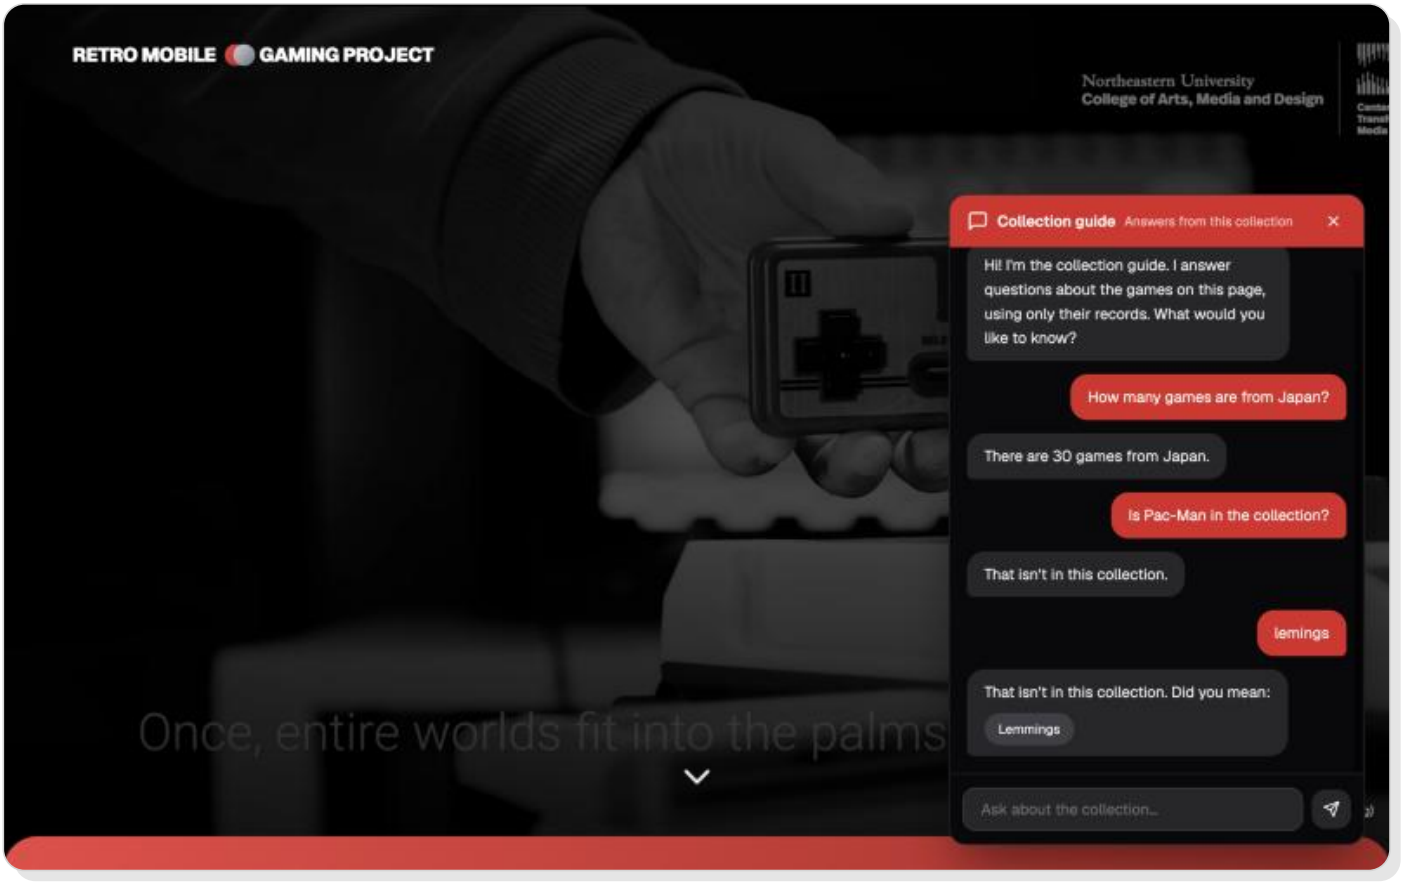

About RMGP

What the project is, and why saving early mobile games matters.

Ask the collection guide

A chat window answers questions using only the games in the collection.

‹ Back to features

How many games are from Japan?

There are 30 games from Japan.

Is Pac-Man in the collection?

That isn't in this collection.

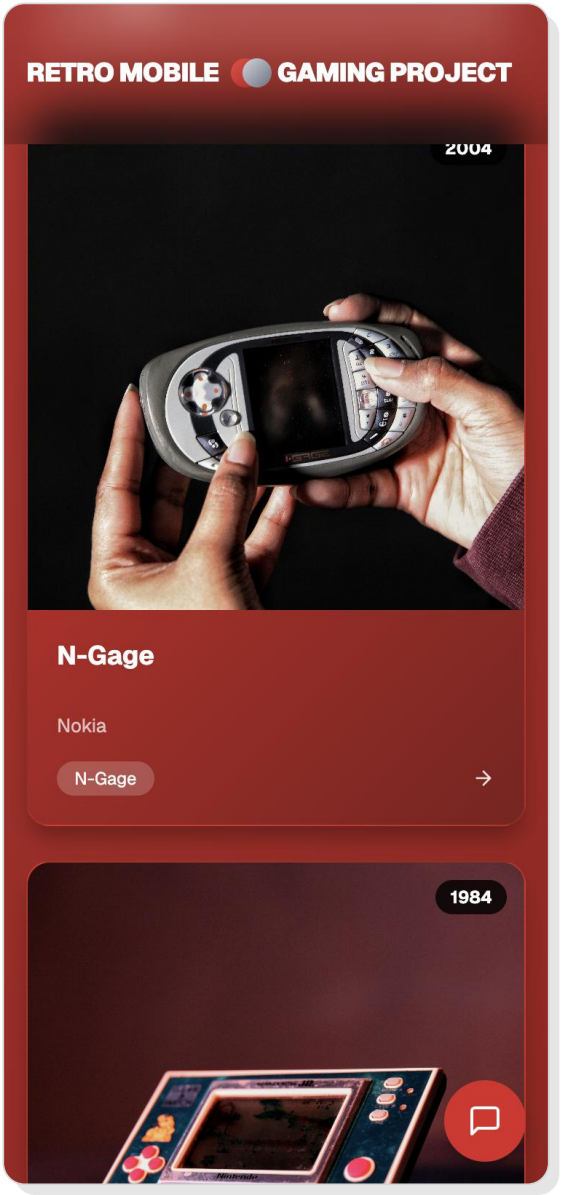

lemings

Did you mean: Lemmings

It never makes up a game.

Works on phones too

‹ Back to features

The same page fits a phone screen, and every part works with the keyboard alone.

What comes next

1. A photo gallery section
   A visual strip of the collection's best images.

2. Put the page online
   So the team can open it with a simple link.

3. A smarter guide
   One that follows up on the last question.
